fore the event takes place. The object of the Community Christmas Tree is to provide cheer for the chidren of parents who are unable to provide such and who would otherwise miss the joys of the glad day. Have you noticed in passing the galy decorated Christmas windows some child standing there, casting wistful and longing glances on the treasures displayed there. feeling they were not for him or her? Have you not wondered that there could be a Christmas without joy and happiness for the poor children? There are many such in Paris, and the purpose of the Community celebration is to enable these unfortunates to be remembered on this day when others are being made happy. "Even as ye do it unto one of these so ye do it unto me," were the words of the Master.

BUTTERFAT AT LOW PRICEES

The price of butter fat on the Paris market this week, about forty-six cents, is the lowest offered on the local market for over two years. At this time last year seventy-five cents per pound was being paid for it. Many farmers have begun making butter instead of selling their butter fat, but there is little demand on this market for butter, and it can be bought for forty-five and fifty cents

RABBIT MARKET SUPPLIED

Rabbits are now plentiful in the local market, selling for twenty to thirty-five cents. There are numerous hunting parties in the county. The bunnies are said to be of a much better quality this season, due to the fact that they have been feeding on a bountiful supply of vegetation, with melon vines and garden truck as side dishes.

THE RELATION BETWEEN BUILD-ING AND LABOR

It is labor in the guise of carpenters and masons and others who are making home-building for thousands mountain flowers to be placed on the impossible. There is an evident grave of her former husband in the downward trend in the cost of ma-Paris Cemetery. The material was terials, lumber, cement, brick, etc., sent by Mr. Fox's mother, Mrs. John but labor stands pat, and those who might build are appalled by the cost of labor calculated in a day's work. If labor worked with the zeal of nonest craftsmen in honest work, the day's accomplishment in speed might offset the heavy toll in the cost per hour. But the conscience of labor in the mass seems to have become atrophied. It is no longer how much he can do, but how little; and the old pride in the good work, the selfrespect that belonged with an honest day's work honestly done and as far as it could be done, no longer governs the lazy, the inefficient and the trouble makers, who would live as the lilies of the field, are at par with men of real skill and especial knowledge. In figuring the cost of building of any sort of a house in these days, one should begin with the cost of labor, and add to any estimate of before-war times anywhere from thirty to forty cents an hour for every man employed, and remember also to deduct about the same ratio for ineficiency. It is labor that must be awakened to the need of greater production within a given time, if wages are to be maintained and the work of rehabititing the world, of making life easier for labor and for us all, is to be realized. There are already signs that some wise heads are beginning to see light. Go to it!

NO DECISION UNTIL 1921.

The site for the Daughters of Revolution schools in the mountains of Kentucky will not be settled upon until the next meeting of the D. A.
R. State conference, which will be held in October, 1921. The State committee for recommending the sites, of which Mrs. Wade Whitley and Mrs. Charlton Alexander, of Paris, are members, expect to visit several places in the mountain counties in the spring and summer, that they may be fully informed by the time of the State conference as to the wisest plan possible. All the locations mentioned as possible so far are onl conjectures, as only one place so far has been visited by the members of the committee.
